

Course	Title
--------	-------

Note: All appointments are subject to final budgetary authorization. Some appointments are also subject to sufficient enrollment. SFU is committed to the principle of equity in employment. Further information about these courses is available in the SFU Calendar; and past course outlines are available via the SFU website.

Spring 2025 Term Details

Appointment dates: January 2 to April 30, 2025

Payroll dates: December 30, 2024 to April 25, 2025 (17 weeks)

Classes begin: Monday, January 6, 2025

Classes end: Wednesday, April 9, 2025

Final exams: occur Friday, April 11–Thursday, April 17 and Tuesday, April 22–Saturday, April 26, 2025

No classes or exams during reading break or these holidays:

Monday 17th February (Family Day)

Tuesday-Sunday 18-23 February (Reading Week)

Appendix A – Additional Qualifications for Specific Courses

CMNS 120W-3 (Writing Intensive)

Competency in oral and written English. Proficiency in English language academic writing and referencing, with a focus on academic report writing and the literature review process. Understanding of academic standards and criteria for academic dishonesty and plagiarism. Must attend TA training workshops offered in the School. Ability to work independently with minimal guidance and as part of a team. Ability to organize and execute lesson plans for tutorials or labs with minimal guidance. Ability to lead and co-ordinate discussions, and to address student questions. Ability to establish priorities and apply time-management strategies to meet deadlines.

CMNS 201W-4 (Writing Intensive)

Competency in oral and written English. Proficiency in English language academic writing and referencing, with a focus on academic report writing and the literature review process. It also requires the ability to understand core concepts of descriptive and inferential statistical data analysis inntcore concepts of guidance.