Outline:

The mission of the New Westminister Police Department is to work with the community to establish a safer environment by reducing crime, violence and fear. The department has three major divisions; general patrol, criminal investigation, and administrative and technical services. Community involvement, crime prevention and quality service are some of the key strategies which the department has implemented to help it achieve its vision of making New Westminister's streets the safest in the Lower Mainland.

The New West police department has a number of internship opportunities available in its divisions, with projects varying from research based, to practice based, or community outreach – depending on need. In all roles, students are responsible for representing the New West Police Department to key stakeholders, so effective verbal communication, writing, and research skills
