Faculty of Environment

For Graduate Students

The

students in the Faculty of Environment who aim to improve aspects of environmental and resource security such as food security (including fisheries), water security, biodiversity or energy security.

The Canadian Pacific/Teck Resources Endowment supports graduate students in the Faculty of Environment who are pursuing or intend to pursue research that focuses on finding innovative solutions or approaches to environmental challenges and sustainability.

The Coastal Zone Canada (BC) Association Graduate Scholarship in the Faculty of Environment provides financial support to graduate students in the Faculty of Environment whose research focuses on the science and/or management of human activities, natural environments, physical processes and living and non-living resources within the coastal zone of British Columbia.

The) th Anniversary Graduate Award in the Faculty of Environment was established in 2019 by th Anniversary (2009 to 2019). It provides support for graduate students in the Faculty of Environment.

The Jim Fulton Memorial Endowment provides a bursary for a graduate student currently enrolled in a masters or doctoral program in the Faculty of Environment.

The Patricia Gallaugher Award in Coastal Science Management provides funding for graduate students conducting community-engaged research that informs policy and/or influences marine or environmental conservation.

The Simons Foundation Graduate Awards in the Faculty of Environment provide support for graduate students enrolled full time in the Faculty of Environment. Preference is given to students conducting research in sustainable development (from local to global scales), environmental and water security, environmental science, and/or ethics and best practices.

The Wayne Goeson Graduate Memorial Award provides funding to graduate students in the Faculty of

The Harvey and Dorothy Burt Bursary Endowment Fund provides a bursary for students in the areas of conservation or environmental protection. Preference is given to Canadian undergraduate students in

The Blue Planet Links Foundation Bursary provides support for undergraduate students majoring in Environmental Science. Preference is given to students with a declared concentration in water science or a declared Sustainable Business joint major.

The Enid Harris Scholarship in Environmental Science provides scholarships for to third- or fourth-year undergraduate students in the Environmental Science Program.

The Ron MacLeod Environmental Science Endowment provides scholarships to third- or fourth-year undergraduate students in the Environmental Science Program.