

EVENING

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

PHILOSOPHY 150

the so-called Pre-Socratics and continues with Socrates, Plato and Aristotle. After a brief discussion of themes arising in Greek antiquity, the course will move into the Medieval period. It covers the period from the late

13th century to the 17th century, including the work of Thomas Aquinas, René

Descartes, and

Immanuel Kant.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the

course syllabus and

readings list.

Students will receive the