

PHIL 144 Introduction to the Philosophy of Natural and Social Science

Section 2, Semester 2010

ASSIGNMENT 1

1. Explain the difference between a deductive and an inductive argument. Give an example of each.

2. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak inductive argument. Give an example of each.

3. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak deductive argument. Give an example of each.

4. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak inductive argument. Give an example of each.

5. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak deductive argument. Give an example of each.

- 1. Introduction to Philosophy - 2008
- 2. Introduction to Philosophy - 2009
- 3. Introduction to Philosophy - 2010
- 4. Introduction to Philosophy - 2011

6. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak inductive argument. Give an example of each.

7. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak deductive argument. Give an example of each.

8. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak inductive argument. Give an example of each.

9. Explain the difference between a strong and a weak deductive argument. Give an example of each.