

PHILOSOPHY 232

PHILOSOPHY 232

PHILOSOPHY 232

as a package by the

The class readings will be compiled from a variety of texts and sold in university book stores.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

COURSE DESCRIPTION

What kind of world is a good world?

The course will explore the philosophical foundations of ethics and political philosophy. We will examine the works of Plato, Aristotle, and modern philosophers such as Kant, Mill, and Rawls. The course will also address contemporary issues in ethics and political philosophy, such as the moral status of animals, the ethics of global climate change, and the rights of the unborn.