

Couples Communication Study

The Couples Communication Study is designed to learn more about how couples communicate and deal with challenges in their relationship including hurt feelings and tensions in their sexual relationship. Our primary goal is to understand how the nature and quality of communication about important relationship issues shape the developmental course of relationships, and to develop tools to help couples enhance relationship functioning.