Blog Post

We have come a long way over the years on equality for women, and women are certainly rising to the top, but the fact remains that there are more CEOs named John than there are CEOs that are women. Trends in the wage gap are unfortunately not showing enough promise for improvement. There are many ways that companies could work to correct the issue, but we've chosen four strategies that all workplaces can consider for creating more equality in their organizations. Read our blog post here.
